LIGHTNING PLAYS HAVOC IN STORM

Kit Blevins and Wife Have Close Call When Home is Struck—Haden Turpin's House is Also Hit

Kit Blevins and his wife had a mighty close call Monday night about six o'clock from death by lightning during the fierce storm which raged for over an hour. Lightning struck their home on the Caperton place on the Big Hill pike, tore a hole in the roof, hit the table around which they were sitting, caused a lamp to explode and tore a dresser in room into kindling wood. Mr. Blevins and his wife were entirely unharmed, though badly shocked. They occupy a tenant house on the Caperton place, which is leased by John Park and family.

The storm was one of the most spectacular that has been noted in these parts for some time. Many thought that another cyclone was at work. Quite a number of people coming in to church on en route home were out in the storm. The rainfall was terrific, almost a cloudburst, accompanied by thunder and lightning.

A number think they noted the jolt which struck the Blevins house and came so nearly getting Blevins and his wife. A particularly vivid flash in the southeast rent the heavens and tapered off into great red balls of fire, which seemed to drop to the earth. Mr. and Mrs. Blevins had just finished their supper and were sitting around the lamp on the table when the bolt struck the home. Much other damage by the severe storm is reported from various other sections around here.

The home of Haden Turpin, on the Union pike, was struck by lightning, and a chimney was torn to pieces. None of his family was hurt, but J. J. Hale, who was a guest in the home, and young Joe Turpin were badly shocked. They were leaning against the chimney at the time. The Lally Light and the telephone in the house were put out of business. A fine blooded sheep in a nearby pasture was killed in the same community.

The barn on the farm of Letcher Tipton was struck by lightning and destroyed by the resulting fire. His loss is said to be quite heavy.

ASHEVILLE KENTUCKY CLUB'S OFFICERS

Dr. John A. Snowden, Formerly of Madison County, Writes of Election and News

In another interesting letter from Asheville, N. C., Dr. John A. Snowden, of Winchester, formerly of this county, writes:

West Asheville, N. C., Apr. 13.
Our Kentucky Club was fully organized last Sunday, with an enrollment of about 175 members which will soon be augmented to four or five hundred. I enclose clipping from the Asheville Citizen.

Yesterday (Tuesday) we attended a convention of doctors at Canton, 20 miles from Asheville. Canton has the largest wood pulp factory in the world. A guard took us through the factory and explained the different processes. The crude wood goes through until it comes out a finished product. It took one hour and a half to go through. The plant has the largest and most wonderful pieces of machinery we have ever seen.

On Sunday afternoon, Rev. O. J. Chandler met with our Kentucky Club. He was pastor of the First Methodist church some eight or ten years ago. He made a beautiful talk. He said he came here five years ago and was a very sick man, but has improved wonderfully and will soon be as good as new. He thinks this is a great climate.

We plan to come home the last week in April. We hope it will be convenient for the Mayor, City Council, Fire Department, Clark County Medical Society, Fiscal Court and as many of the private citizens as can spare the time to meet us at the depot with band and banner to give us a hearty home coming welcome.

Very sincerely,
Dr. John A. Snowden.

The clipping in regard to the Kentucky Club was as follows:

"Adoption of a constitution and by-laws and election of permanent officers featured the third organization meeting of the Kentucky Club of Asheville, held yesterday at the Masonic Temple where the next gathering is to be held April 24. The Masonic fraternities have extended to new organization an invitation to make use of the temple for their meetings, in return for which the club passed a resolution of thanks.

"With Judge Wallace E. Varnon presiding, and many ex-Kentuckians present, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Harmon A. Miller, president; Dr. John A. Snowden, first vice president; Mrs. Mary Walden Williamson, second vice president; H. W. S. Shawhan, secretary and treasurer. The four officers are members of the executive committee on which there will also serve Judge Wallace E. Varnon, Winston Walden, Robert S. Gorham, R. M. Beadles and Miss Sarah Mulberry.

"In the constitution adopted yesterday, the purpose of the club is set forth as follows: To cultivate social intercourse among its members, to visit and attend the wants, as far as possible of the sick coming into our midst from Kentucky, as well as all other Kentuckians visiting our city."

Regarding qualification for membership the constitution has the following to say:

"All persons of the age of 18 years and upwards, who were born in Kentucky and had five years continuous residence in said state, or whose wife or husband is a native-born Kentuckian, or has resided in said state continuously for five years, or is a graduate of any college or university of said state shall be qualified to be elected members of this club.

"The descendants of all members with the above qualifications shall be eligible to membership, limiting same to grandchildren."

HUNS OFFER TO TAKE OVER OUR WAR LOANS

Counter Proposals on Reparations Contain This Clause—France is Suspicious

(By Associated Press)
Berlin, April 26.—If the United States and the Allies so desire, Germany is willing, according to the extent of her ability and capacity, to assume the Allied obligations to the United States, says a clause in her reparations counter proposal, it was learned definitely today. With this exception the counter proposals forwarded to Washington, including the offer of two hundred billion gold marks, are virtually as forecast in the Associated Press dispatches from Berlin Monday.

France Sees Hun Duplicity
(By Associated Press)
Paris, April 26.—Convinced that Germany is seeking delay in the execution of all clauses of the Versailles treaty, in the hope of dividing the Allies and making the bargaining for Germany easier later on, it is semi-officially indicated today that France is seriously considering the occupation of the Ruhr valley, regardless of what Berlin may propose through Washington.

Hun Proposals In
(By Associated Press)
Washington, April 26.—Germany's counter proposals were received today at the State Department, and it is understood were laid before the Cabinet. Officials refused to say what proposals Germany made.

If any decision was reached at the Cabinet meeting on the German proposals, the fact was carefully concealed. Those attending maintained absolute silence on the subject and would not even say that the German communication was taken up. It is known, however, that Secretary Hughes laid it before the President and his advisers. It is understood here, that before any move will be made, the Allied diplomats will be consulted.

SUGAR DROPS TO LOWEST IN 4 YEARS

(By Associated Press)
New York, April 26.—Sugar prices reached their lowest level since 1917 today when a decline of a quarter of a cent a pound was announced. This brings fine granulated sugar to six and three fourths cents a pound.

Butter Drops Too
Chicago, April 26.—Butter prices tumbled here today to 35 cents a pound compared with 44 cents yesterday. Increased supplies appeared to be responsible.

LOCAL ELOPING COUPLE CAUGHT

The Courier-Journal said Monday:
Granville Kelly and Pauline Rhodus, both of Richmond, Ky., went to Jeffersonville yesterday to obtain a marriage license. They are under arrest awaiting the arrival of Pauline's father, Burrill R. Rhodus. The trouble is that Granville says he is 19 years old; Pauline says she is 14; a telegram received by the police Wednesday says Granville is 17 and Pauline 12.

The would-be bridegroom's father, Granville Kelly, Sr., who consents to the match, is in Jeffersonville with them. Since the elopement from Richmond Wednesday they also have been at Lexington, it was learned and Mr. Rhodus has been searching for them. Mr. Rhodus knows where they are now. There may not be a wedding.

Wm. B. Clements, Jr., a farmer near Bardstown, is in jail on the charge of moonshining.

DR. MAYO WILL VISIT BOONESBORO

Famous Physician and Party of Guests to Come by River From Minnesota Soon

Madison county and Boonesboro Bathing Beach will have the pleasure of entertaining perhaps the most widely known surgeons and a company of friends the latter part of the month, that the country knows today. Dr. Wm. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., and a party of guests have chartered the steamer Minnesota and will make the trip here by water. Dr. D. J. Williams has been notified of their coming. They will bring their automobiles with them and are expected to spend a couple of days touring the Blue Grass. Dr. Williams is contemplating giving a big fish fry or some other entertainment at Boonesboro in their honor.

Dr. Mayo and party will come down the Mississippi river to the mouth of the Ohio near Cairo; then come up the Ohio to the mouth of the Kentucky river near Carrollton, and thence up Kentucky river to Boonesboro. Capt. Pryor, of the government service on the river, has been granted a leave of absence from his duties to act as pilot for the distinguished party up the Kentucky river. He says that the smokestacks on the steamer will be cut off so as to enable so large a craft to pass under several bridges over the Kentucky river. Dr. Williams says that he expects Dr. Mayo and his party to reach Boonesboro about the 27th or 28th of April.

WALLACETON

Miss Mary Todd, of Paint Lick, was operated on last Wednesday. It was quite a shock to her many friends when the word came Thursday morning that she had been called a higher and better world. She leaves three sisters, five brothers, and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Calico, and Misses Clara Bowlin and Dora Gentry visited Mrs. James Wallace, Sunday.

The death angel visited our community last Wednesday night and took away our oldest citizen, Hiram Bowlin. He fought as a Confederate soldier in the Civil War, having received seven wounds. He was 81 years old. He leaves nine children, 50 grand children, and 32 great grandchildren to mourn his loss.

Born to Mrs. Roosevelt Brock (nee Dorothy Elliott) a fine boy. Mother and babe are doing fine.

Rev. Vogel gave a very touching address at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon. It is a pleasure to have Rev. Vogel with us, as he was once pastor at this place.

Felix Estridge who has been sick for some time, is slowly improving.

BEND

We are having cool, pleasant weather. The frost came around and got the remainder of the fruit.

The farmers are hustling now, preparatory to planting corn this week.

J. B. Smyth had a steer to die last week.

One more week of school and then the teachers go to the Normal to take training preparatory to getting certificates for another term. Lots of red tape. It's good for them if they can hold it.

Rev. Parks, of College Hill, preached at the Bend school house Sunday. He is an eloquent and forceful speaker.

Edward Pitcher, who enlisted in the navy a short time ago, has been discharged and returned home. "It was not a picnic; if you can't hold it you had better stay at home and pick up chips for mamma and let the navy alone."

The big pie is being distributed at Washington. There is one not so large to be divided in the good old county of Madison. This pie must be sweet and juicy. There are a great many applicants. One of the Berea Angels is wanting a slice. Those who are bidding are all good men. The people will be in safe hands, let the pie go where it may.

ANOTHER GREAT MESSAGE GIVEN

Again Monday night Dr. Doolan gave to the people a great message. His subject "The Silence of Jesus," was handled in his usual impressive way, so that every one present received a heart message which will abide. He told of His silence before Herod and gave as the cause of that silence the fact that Herod asked the questions out of idle curiosity. He then told of the woman who came to Jesus asking that her daughter, who was possessed of the devil may be healed. He was silent for a time after her request because he wanted to teach his disciples He came, not to save the Jews alone, but to save all the world. As the text shows, the disciples, prior to the time the woman came, had been questioning the right of the Gentiles to salvation. He then told of the silence of Jesus before Pilate, and gave the reasons of theologians of different ages for that silence, which he said was all incorrect. He said the Jesus was silent because he was guilty, and therefore, had no answer. Guilty, not of his own sins, but of the sins of all humanity. He had taken into himself the sins of all of us.

Dr. Doolan is very appreciative of the fine audiences which have attended the services and also the spirit of the community towards the meetings. He says that he has never had more attentive audiences anywhere, and that the earnestness of the Christians of the community is all that could be desired. The meetings are having a fine effect upon those who are attending and it is the hope of the First Baptist church that every person in the town may be able to hear and appreciate the messages which are being delivered.

The services will continue at 2:30 in the afternoon and at 7:30 in the evening, including Thursday and Thursday evening. Everyone is cordially invited to be present.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

The great benefit derived from the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been gratefully acknowledged by many. Mrs. Benjamin F. Blakeney, Decatur, Ill., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is by far the best medicine for colds and coughs we have ever used in our family. I gave it to my child when small for croup and have taken it myself." apr

DRY OFFICERS HAVE DONE BIG WORK

1,203 Moonshine Stills Destroyed In This Division During February and March

(By Associated Press)
Lexington, April 26—Twelve hundred and three illicit distilling plants were seized and destroyed during February and March by the forces of the Southern Division of the United States prohibition enforcement organization, according to a recapitulation of the work for the two months just received here from division headquarters in Richmond, Va. A total of 674 persons were arrested in the raids and 49 automobiles and 14 "other vehicles" seized.

Plants destroyed in the Eastern District of Kentucky were 31 in February and 41 in March and in the Western district in February 11 and 14 in March. Fifty-eight persons were arrested in the eastern district during February and 51 in March and 21 in the western district in February and 22 in March. Officers of the eastern district seized one automobile and one "other vehicle" in each of the two months and in the western district one automobile was seized in February and two in March and two "other vehicles" in February and one in March.

Plants destroyed in Virginia during the two months were 307; Tennessee 148; North Carolina 305 and South Carolina 146. Arrests in Virginia totalled 179; Tennessee 183; North Carolina 114 and South Carolina 96.

Automobiles seized in Virginia were six and "other vehicles" three; Tennessee, automobiles seized, six and "other vehicles" three; North Carolina, automobile seven, "other vehicles" three, and South Carolina, automobiles, eighteen and "other vehicles" on.

The recapitulation shows 917 stills and 539 worms destroyed in the five states during the months. Prohibition officers explained that often when an illicit plant is discovered, the still and worm have been taken away and hidden while the "mash" is fermenting. This prevents their destruction by raiders. The dry enforcement men destroyed 5,613 gallons of spirits (moonshine whisky); 7,604 fermenters; 14,030 gallons of cider and 599,435 gallons of still beer. The value of the property seized for sale in the district was $26,834; property seized and destroyed $238,000 and taxes and penalties recommended for assessment, $971,238. The number of officers employed during February were 161 and during March 158.

The recapitulation for Kentucky shows: Eastern district—illicit plants destroyed, 72; stills destroyed, 68; worms destroyed, 44; gallons of spirits destroyed 256; number of fermenters destroyed, 371; gallons of cider destroyed, 290; gallons of still beer destroyed, 12,495; automobiles seized, one; "other vehicles" seized for sale, 2,370; number of persons arrested, 80; value of property seized and destroyed, $8,050; taxes and penalties assessed, $141,792; number of officers employed, February 11, March 13; salaries of officers, $3,635; expenses of agents $3,285.

Western District of Kentucky—illicit plants destroyed, 25; stills, 16; worms, 14; gallons of spirits, 279; number of fermenters, 166; gallons of cider, none; gallons of still beer, 7,265; automobile seized, three; other vehicles, three; value of property seized for sale $2,246; value of property seized and destroyed, $3,541; taxes and penalties recommended for assessment, $53,202; number of officers employed, February 10, March 10; salaries of agents, $2,326; expenses of agents, $2,347.

The Hardest Job in Every Business

In nearly every line production has been increased on account of the war. The hardest job ahead is to find a market in peace times for what those factories turn out. Money is made—not in manufacturing—but in selling. Yet selling seldom receives the attention it deserves.

The number of factories a manufacturer can build—the profit he can earn—are limited by the amount of merchandise for which he can find a profitable market.

If demand can be kept ahead of production, a profitable market is sure. And the one way to keep demand ahead of production is by advertising—teaching the public to use more of your goods.

In the past the South has bent her energies on manufacturing. The marketing of her products were largely left to others who took the raw materials and staples and converted them into specialties, trade-marked, advertised and sold them. And, invariably, it is the selling of specialties that pays the wide margin of profit and the selling of staples that pays the slim.

Greater profits—keeping conditions in our hands instead of on them—depend upon our marketing our goods as well as upon our making them.

The South's cotton goods should be known by brand-names in Detroit just as we know and buy the various makes of automobiles produced by the citizens of that enterprising Michigan city.

Lumber, of which the South is the Nation's greatest possessor, will be needed for reconstruction and the merits of our various woods should be convincingly told by advertising.

The South is the greatest fat-producing section of America. In the vegetable oils from her cotton-seed, peanuts and soy beans she produces more fat than all the dairy cows of America—more fat than all the hogs slaughtered in a year. More Southern-made and marketed compound lards and salad oils would bring additional millions into Dixie.

Cane syrups, coffees and all the other epicurean delights for which the South is famed would find a bigger demand if backed by adequate advertising. And such a demand would automatically fix a profitable price.

Marketing our products as well as making them would furnish work for the hands and brains of our returning sons—provide room for the tallest ambition and stop the emigration to the North and West of the talented and ambitious.

There was a time when we could sell the merchant and let him push the goods. But today the hardware, grocery and drug stores will carry from 2,000 to 10,000 different items. Pushing any one is impossible.

Wise manufacturers are marking their goods so that they can be recognized—telling the public about their merits and inducing the folks to pull them off of the shelves. And in this respect, at least, an ounce of "pull" is worth a pound of "push."

The advertising agencies of the South have had years of experience in advertising and marketing many commodities. They know the methods that have proved successful, because their whole time is engrossed with the problems of selling.

Their contact with leading manufacturers in many lines has made them intimate with various methods of winning trade—methods of securing distribution—fighting substitution. It is their business to know how business is being built.

Their services cost nothing. They are paid a commission by the publishers to make advertising profitable to the manufacturer. It will be a revelation to many business men to know the varied forms of assistance these agencies can render—information on markets, containers, trademark law, distribution methods, dealer cooperation, service in preparing booklets, copy-writing and real information on the value of different classes of advertising media.

Write, wire or phone any of the accredited advertising agencies of the South and arrange a conference with them to discuss how to increase sales. Let them help you solve the hardest job ahead

AN AUTO TRIP IN HEART OF THE HILLS

Is Interestingly Described by Mrs. Fannie Watts Beverly,
Formerly of Richmond

Mrs. Fannie Watts Beverly, of Jenkins, Ky., formerly of Madison county, has written a very interesting account of an auto trip through the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, which will be read with interest by her many friends "back home" here. She writes:

To those unacquainted with the mountain scenery of Eastern Kentucky I wish to say that for beauty and grandeur I believe the scenery of this section is unsurpassed. I was reared in Madison county and though familiar with most of the scenes of interest throughout the bluegrass section of the state, I knew nothing of the grand, imposing scenery along the Cumberland mountains until I came to Letcher county about two years ago. To those who have never visited this section of the country, I will say that a trip through it will be one long thrill of wonder and admiration not to be experienced elsewhere.

Letcher county, in the heart of the hills, is now the center of a rich coal field which has been developed during the last ten years. My husband being called to McRoberts on business, about ten miles from here, asked me to accompany him on an auto trip, which I gladly accepted. After preparing a noon lunch, we started about six o'clock a. m. and motored slowly up a zigzag road till we reached the top of a mountain, where we had a clear view in all directions for many miles.

The scene was grand and delightful. Great mountain peaks—grim and forbidding—in their majestic beauty, towering skyward, on and on, till their last faint outlines were lost to view in the dim far distance, verdant valleys wrapt in silent slumber, save for the restless murmuring of the cool and sparkling brooks. Great forests of oak, poplar and hemlock and many other species of timber spread before us, tall and stately pines bowing gracefully to every gentle breeze, their fragrance floating away on the balmy air. Huge cliffs, towering high into the ethereal regions, on whose summits the eagle and the vulture may nest in seclusion and rear their young in safety far beyond the reach of curious adventurers. Truly, the scene was one of magnificence and grandeur never to be forgotten.

After making some pictures of the scenery, we started down the other side of the mountain and were soon at McRoberts. At different places along our way were large painted signs with the words, "This road is the private property of the — Coal Company, and all persons not employees using same will do so at their own risk."

I asked my husband what these signs meant and he told me that the coal operators made these roads at their own expense and that they had about 30 miles of road connecting four operations. Jenkins, McRoberts, Fleming and Haymond, and he further informed me that Letcher county could not boast of a single foot of hard road of its own. I also noticed posters stating that an election was going to be held for the purpose of voting for and against the issuance of bonds for constructing public highways throughout the county, and I wondered whether the people of the county would see the wisdom for voting for better roads.

From here we motored to Fleming, about two miles, and here let me say that a more beautiful piece of road than that connecting McRoberts and Fleming I have never seen. On our journey we passed near the historic tree on which Daniel Boone carved his name in 1780. We also passed through the gap in the mountain through which Daniel Boone, John Finley and four others found their way in 1769 as they came to explore the "marvelous" land of Kentucky.

Twelve o'clock came and we stopped under a railroad bridge to eat our lunch. A huge, dilapidated old log house stood near the bank of a stream. We made some remarks about the log house to passersby and were told that the house was over 100 years old, and that the place was "haunted" and for many years no one could live in it on account of the "ghosts" which paraded the house at night.

From here we crossed another mountain to Haymond and returned over all of the private road. On our journey we traveled over some of the section made memorable by John Fox, Jr., in his "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." The Lonesome Pine, Picket Rock Red Fox's cabin and Jud Tolliver's home are all to be seen along the route, while some of the real characters who appeared in the novel are still living in this section.

To those who might believe this remote settlement is beyond the real civilization, I wish to say that they only need to make a visit here to be convinced of the utility of the idea. In this section one finds some of the most modern up-to-date buildings, electric light and power plants, banks, theatres, libraries, recreation buildings, fine schools and churches.

Jenkins in this isolated territory has a population of about 5,000 people, has paved streets, mammoth brick structures, an up-to-date hospital and board of health. Here also is an artificial lake of pure mountain water covering about 15 acres at a depth of 60 feet. Many species of fish and turtle are being propagated here and fishing and bathing is a great pastime.

We motored slowly toward home, stopping occasionally to make a picture of something unusual or interesting. Night had overtaken us as we reached the top of a mountain—the third one we had crossed during our day's journey. We now had about five miles to go before reaching home and the rest of our journey was down through a deep narrow valley. All now was wrapt in mystic silence save for the shrill notes of the whippoorwill and the plaintive "who who" of the lonely owl floating softly over the valley and re-echoing against the far-away hills. We reached home about 8 o'clock in the evening, and I must say that my motor trip through the heart of the hills was truly one of wonder and delight.

MARET WRITES OF BATTLE OF RICHMOND

During Civil War When Confederates Drove Federals Over the Kentucky River

Col. Jim Maret tells a lot more interesting old-time history concerning Richmond and vicinity in his column in the Lexington Leader, entitled "First Things in Kentucky." In his last he details several battles of the Civil War which were fought right around here. He writes, in part:

The battle of Richmond took place August 30, 1862. Skirmishing, a few miles south of Richmond, on the 29th, between the advance of the two armies. On the 30th, Brigadier General Mansson (of Indiana) contrary to the orders of his superior officer General Nelson, to avoid a fight and fall back, marched out five miles to attack the enemy, and at 6 a. m. brought on a fierce engagement between his force of 9,000 and the Confederate force of somewhat greater numbers, which lasted until 11 o'clock.

A lull of about one hour ensued, both sides seeming exhausted when the battle was renewed, but the tide soon turned against the Federals, who fled in every direction, the main body keeping the pace toward Richmond.

Two miles from Richmond Gen. Nelson, who had ridden 52 miles that day on a relay of horses, met and rallied the flying forces making a brief and desperate resistance, even cutting down with his sword an officer who called to his men to scatter and run. The panic soon was complete and he, unwilling to give up, was surrounded by the enemy, twice wounded, and would have been killed but for the daring act of Major General Green Clay, who seized his bridle and forced him from the field.

At the crossing of the Kentucky river, he rallied some fragments of the regiments to check the pursuing force, but only for a few minutes. Such utter demoralization and panic could not be suddenly recovered from, and a large part of the troops took thru the woods and fields, not ceasing their flight until they had crossed the Ohio river. "Don't tell me those rebel soldiers won't fight," said a Federal major, who had retreated to the bank of the Ohio, but whose courage had stood the test of many a well fought battle in other climes; "they lived on nothing but green corn, giving their horses one ear while roasting another for themselves, but I tell you they fought like devils!"

In the singular excitement that ensued for weeks, no accurate account of the loss was published; the Federal loss is variously stated at 225 to 400 killed; 350 to 1,100 wounded, and from 3,000 to 6,000 prisoners; the Confederate loss in killed from 100 to 250, and wounded at from 250 to 500. The prisoners were paroled and set free. (The compiler of these articles has a distinct recollection of hearing the cannonading during the battle of Richmond, 13 miles away, at his home in Garrard county; his age at that time was seven years.)

September 1st Paris was evacuated by the Federals, who fell back on General Kirby Smith's Confederate troops occupied Lexington. Their approach caused great excitement at Louisville, and Covington, Newport and Cincinnati; where the next day martial law was proclaimed. Versailles was occupied by Confederates September 2.

Several skirmishes occurred during the month in different portions of the state.

Morgan's Calvary reached Lexington on September 4 at 10 a. m., amid enthusiastic shouts and congratulations. They entered Kentucky via, Allen county, thence through Glasgow, Columbia, Liberty, Hustonville, Danville, and Nicholasville. Within a few days Capt. W. C. P. Breckinridge, Lieut. Sam D. Morgan, (a cousin of Col. John H. Morgan) and Col. Cluke and Chenault recruited nearly 1,000 men for their battalion and regiment. Capt. (now Brigadier General) Abram Buford, recruited three regiments of calvary under Col. Butler, Smith and Grigsby.

A skirmish occurred near Paint Lick, Garrard county, and Big Hill, Madison county, between Col. Ed McCook's Federals and Col. John H. Morgan's and Col. Scott's Confederate calvary. The former captured the telegraph operators of Gen. Kirby Smith's army and their instruments.

passed near the historic tree on which Daniel Boone carved his name in 1780. We also passed through the gap in the mountain through which Daniel Boone, John Finley and four others found their way in 1769 as they came to explore the "marvelous" land of Kentucky.

Twelve o'clock came and we stopped under a railroad bridge to eat our lunch. A huge, dilapidated old log house stood near the bank of a stream. We made some remarks about the log house to passersby and were told that the house was over 100 years old, and that the place was "haunted" and for many years no one could live in it on account of the "ghosts" which paraded the house at night.

From here we crossed another mountain to Haymond and returned by another route, traveling over all of the private road. On our journey we traveled over some of the section made memorable by John Fox, Jr., in his "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." The Lonesome Pine, Picket Rock, Red Fox's cabin and Jud Tolliver's home are all to be seen along the route, while some of the real characters who appeared in the novel are still living in this section.

To those who might believe this remote settlement is beyond the realm of civilization, I wish to say that they only need to make a visit here to be convinced of the intensity of the idea. In this section one finds some of the most modern up-to-date buildings, electric light and power plants, banks, theatres, libraries, recreation buildings, fine schools and churches.

Jenkins in this isolated territory has a population of about 5,000 people, has paved streets, mammoth brick structures, an up-to-date hospital and board of health. Here also is an artificial lake of pure mountain water covering about 15 acres at a depth of 60 feet. Many species of fish and turtle are being propagated here and fishing and bathing is a great pastime.

We motored slowly toward home, stopping occasionally to make a picture of something unusual or interesting. Night had overtaken us as we reached the top of a mountain—the third one we had crossed during our day's journey. We now had about five miles to go before reaching home and the rest of our journey was down through a deep narrow valley. All now was wrapt in mystery, the silence save for the shrill notes of the whippoorwill and the plaintive "who who" of the lonely owl floating softly over the valley and re-echoing against the far-away hills. We reached home about 8 o'clock in the evening, and I must say that my motor trip through the heart of the hills was truly a visit here to be convinced of the

Federation of Music Club Names
Conditions For Its Annual Competition

We reprint the article below for a number who failed to get a previous copy:

The Richmond Federation of Music Clubs announces the Fourth Annual Piano Contest to take place the last of May or early in June. The committee in charge believes in its value as an incentive to greater effort on the part of the student and also as a potent factor in the development and promotion of musical art in the town and state.

This contest includes three classes, Senior, Intermediate and Junior, and is to be governed by the following conditions: All contestants must be local students. 2 Contestants in Junior class must be under eleven and over eight; in intermediate under fourteen; and in the Senior from fourteen to twenty. 3 Contestants are virtually as forecast in notes. 4 No winner in a former contest may enter the same class. 5 Contestant in Senior division must play two compositions, one of which must be one movement from some sonata. 6 The prizes offered are the same as last year, five dollars in the Junior and Intermediate, and the contestant in the Senior division, to be eligible, must accept six weeks' training at the College of Music, Cincinnati. If prevented by illness then the privilege goes to the second person named by the judges. 7 Three out-of-town judges will be chosen and the contestants will be known to them only by number. 8 The contest will be open to the public. Students may make application to Mrs. C. D. Chennault, president of the local federation, or to Miss Helen Bennett, chairman of the contest.

MARET WRITES OF BATTLE OF RICHMOND

Col. Jim Maret tells a lot more interesting old-time history concerning Richmond and vicinity in his column in the Lexington Leader, entitled "First Things in Kentucky." In his last he details several battles of the Civil War which were fought right around here. He writes, in part:

The battle of Richmond took place August 30, 1862. Skirmishing, a few miles south of Richmond, on the 29th, between the advance of the two armies. On the 30th, Brigadier General Mansson (of Indiana) contrary to the orders of his superior officer General Nelson, to avoid a fight and fall back, marched out five miles to attack the enemy, and at 6 a. m. brought on a fierce engagement between his force of 9,000 and the Confederate force of somewhat greater numbers, which lasted until 11 o'clock.

A hull of about one hour ensued, both sides seeming exhausted when the battle was renewed, but the tide soon turned against the Federals, who fled in every direction, the main body keeping the pike toward Richmond.

Two miles from Richmond Gen. Nelson, who had ridden 52 miles that day on a relay of horses, met and rallied the flying forces making a brief and desperate resistance, even cutting down with his sword an officer who called to his men to scatter and run. The panic soon was complete and he, unwilling to give up, was surrounded by the enemy, twice wounded, and would have been killed but for the daring act of Major General Green Clay, who seized his bridle and forced him from the field.

At the crossing of the Kentucky river, he rallied some fragments of the regiments to check the pursuing force, but only for a few minutes. Such utter demoralization and panic could not be suddenly recovered from, and a large part of the troops took thru the woods and fields, not ceasing their flight until they had crossed the Ohio river. "Don't tell me those rebel soldiers won't fight," said a Federal major, who had retreated to the bank of the Ohio, but whose courage had stood the test of many a well fought battle in other climes; "they lived on nothing but green corn, giving their horses one ear while roasting another for themselves, but I tell you they fought like devils!"

In the singular excitement that ensued for weeks, no accurate account of the loss was published; the Federal loss is variously stated at 225 to 400 killed; 350 to 1,100 wounded, and from 3,000 to 6,000 prisoners; the Confederate loss in killed from 100 to 250, and wounded at from 250 to 500. The prisoners were paroled and set free. (The compiler of these articles has a distinct recollection of hearing the cannonading during the battle of Richmond, 13 miles away, at his home in Garrard county; his age at that time was seven years.)

September 1st Paris was evacuated by the Federals, who fell back on General Kirby Smith's Confederate troops occupied Lexington. Their approach caused great excitement at Louisville, and Covington, Newport and Cincinnati; where the next day martial law was proclaimed. Versailles was occupied by Confederates September 2.

Several skirmishes occurred during the month in different portions of the state.

Morgan's Calvary reached Lexington on September 4 at 10 a. m., amid enthusiastic shouts and congratulations. They entered Kentucky via, Allen county, thence through Glasgow, Columbia, Liberty, Hustonville, Danville, and Nicholasville. Within a few days Capt. W. C. P. Breckinridge, Lieut. Sam D. Morgan, (a cousin of Col. John H. Morgan) and Col. Cluke and Chennault recruited nearly 1,000 men for their battalion and regiment. Capt. (now Brigadier General) Abram Buford, recruited three regiments of calvary under Col. Butler, Smith and Grigsby.

A skirmish occurred near Paint Lick, Garrard county, and Big Hill, Madison county, between Col. Ed McCook's Federals and Col. John H. Morgan's and Col. Scott's Confederate calvary. The former captured the telegraph operators of Gen. Kirby Smith's army and their instruments.

A CHANCE TO GET A FEARLESS OFFICER

Rowan Saufley, of Stanford, who has just resigned as Chief Prohibition Officer for the Western District of Kentucky, is here as a witness in federal court against several liquor law violators, whom he caused to be arrested. Mr. Saufley is a candidate for County Judge in his county of Lincoln, and his friends say that he stands a splendid chance of nomination and election.

If the law-abiding people of that county want to put in office a man who will enforce the law fearlessly and without favor, they will certainly nominate him. For the past eight years he has been one of Uncle Sam's prohibition enforcers, and no man ever held such an office and left it with a better record. He has proven a terror to evil doers of every sort. He knows them and their game, and as county judge of Lincoln would certainly rid that county of all who cause trouble by making or selling whisky or otherwise. His long experience will admirably fit him to serve the people of his home county well and truly.

How Diphtheria is Contracted

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. If your child has a cold when diphtheria is prevalent you should take him out of school and keep him off the streets until fully recovered, as there is a hundred times more danger of his taking diphtheria when he has a cold. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted.

Who Wants to Jine This Church?

Chicago, April 26.—Farmers in an isolated district of the Dakota prairies have a cult whose rites are as startling as the most bizarre of mystic cults in the cities, says Mrs. Florence Bratsberg in a bill of divorce filed here.

According to her allegations, some of the tenets of the order to which her husband belongs are:

Wives must be beaten at regular intervals.

The eyes of wives must be pinched and blackened by blows so that they will not be attractive to other men.

Husbands must leave their wives for long periods, so that their love will not die of monotony.

Mrs. Bratsberg said she had never learned the name of the cult but that its membership included many farmers.

The cult adherents, she said, beat their wives and spent long periods away from home.

She charges that when her husband worked himself into a religious frenzy he "mercilessly beat, choked and bruised" her.

They were married in July, 1918. According to Mrs. Bratsberg, her husband left her on his "period of abstinence" less than a year after the marriage. In the husband's absence his friends deny the charge.

Edward S. Joutet has been selected chief attorney for the L. and N. Railroad.

LITTLE BEFORE U, S. COURT HERE SO FAR

The April term of Federal Court is proving very quiet so far. Only two moonshining cases have been tried as yet, but the grand jury has evidence in a number before it, and is expected to make a report late Tuesday afternoon. The cases tried were those of Goodloe Combs and Fult Newberry, Perry county, both of whom were acquitted. These were the second trials for each of them.

Court was occupied Tuesday morning with the trial of an oil case transferred here from Lexington. A number of prominent lawyers were aligned on each side. Judge E. C. O'Rear, Frankfort, was chief counsel for one side, and Hon. T. L. Edelen, of Frankfort, on the other.

Attorneys R. C. Oldham, Richmond, and R. L. Black, Harrodsburg, were admitted to practice in federal court.

Naturalization Commissioner Kennedy, of Cincinnati, was here Monday and finally passed as American citizens S. J. McGaughey, of Richmond, a native of Canada; Mrs. Anna Ernberg, of Berea, a native of Sweden, and J. B. Dicker, of Lexington, a native of England.

Deputy Clerk Miss Sara Monday has issued passports to Europe for Miss Patsy Ross, of this city. Miss Ross plans an extensive tour on the continent with a party headed by Miss Sara McGarvey, of Lexington.

All Mothers Will Find Use For This Laxative

Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a constipated child and note its quick recovery.

IN a growing family the subject of thought with the parents is how to keep the children healthy and happy, and what to do when they become ill. Most illnesses of childhood are the symptoms of constipation, such as headaches, coated tongues, flatulence, dizziness, loss of appetite and sleep, biliousness, etc.

You can surely feel safe in doing what tens of thousands of others do with good results, so give, according to the age of the child, a small quantity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought last year at drug stores. It is America's favorite family remedy for constipation, indigestion and similar ills, and is especially suitable for children, women and old folks as it is so mild and gentle in action.

There is no secret about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant tasting aromatics. Druggists have sold it for thirty years, and a sixty cent bottle will last for months. Experienced mothers are never without it in the house.

VOLSTEAD STARTS AFTER BEER AGAIN

Washington, April 26—As the first step of the fight in Congress to tighten up the Volstead prohibition enforcement law, a bill designed to prohibit the sale of beer to the sick on a doctor's prescription was introduced in the House by Chairman Andrew J. Volstead, of the Judiciary Committee.

The measure would not prohibit the use of wine for medicinal purposes, but would make more specific and stringent the regulations on this subject.

Frankly declaring that there was no real necessity for beer as a medicine, Mr. Volstead announced that his bill, described as supplemental to the national prohibition act, was put forward at this time to meet the situation created by the opinion of Mitchell Palmer, former Attorney General, that beer and wine, under the Volstead act, could be prescribed for ailing.

MOTHER GAVE IT

Virginia Lady Suffered With Aches and Pains Until Mother Began Giving Her Cardui.

Dublin, Va.—Miss Mary Alice Huggett residing on Route 2, near here, recently told a visitor of her interesting experience with Cardui. Miss Huggett said: "I had been suffering for some time with painful . . . I was pale, didn't feel like going. Would just drag around, and couldn't rest to do any good. I would suffer once a month with my back, sides and head. My limbs would ache and I didn't know what to do, but I knew I must do something, for I didn't get well by letting it run on."

"My mother is a believer in Cardui, for she saw what it did for others as well as herself, so she began giving it to me. 'It wasn't long before I saw a change. It was just what I needed. It regulated me. I began to eat and sleep, and the pain stopped. 'Cardui is without doubt the best female tonic made, and I am glad I can recommend it to others.'"

If suffering with symptoms such as Miss Huggett mentions, or other ailments peculiar to women, why not begin Cardui at once? Its merit is well established by successful use for more than 40 years.

AT THE MOVIES

Douglas MacLean, who is star red in the Ince-Paramount picture "The Jailbird," which will be shown at the local theatres today, didn't have to make any special trips to penitentiaries for local color because sh-h-h! he has been a real jail bird himself, and has done time behind prison bars.

Don't get the impression that he's a criminal on that account. A certain town not far from Doug's home has a solid little jail an efficient police force, a calloused old judge, and strict speed laws. Heading for home from a week-end house party one Sunday evening and in a hurry to get there, Doug whizzed through the town, shattered all the speed laws, stirred up all of the police force, and was picked up by a motorcycle cop who led him back to town and the judge.

With the great demand for rural studies upon the screen, Maurice Tourneur has breasted up with the call in fine shape with his picture version of "The Country Fair." It is one of those heart interest stories of laughte and tears and plain simple people that never fails to register. For years Neil Burgess toured the country in the original drama and the play and star became a household affair. Tourneur has elaborated upon the story and made it a sure-fire hit upon the screen. Its fame has spread like wildfire and everywhere the people are clamoring to see it. "The Country Fair" will be presented at the local theatres Friday.
